Mayor lifts Snow Emergency parking restrictions

Middletown Mayor James H. Curry III has lifted the Snow Emergency declaration that has been in place in the Borough since Wednesday. The Mayor also has ended the disaster emergency which he declared on Thursday to aid clean-up efforts from the mid-week snow storm that dumped nearly a foot of snow on the Borough.

"First and foremost, I would like to personally thank the Public Works Department, Borough Manager, Police and Fire Departments, and each and every volunteer that helped to facilitate the Borough's response to Mother Nature. Your tireless efforts have not gone unnoticed by me or the public. Second, thank you to the residents for your admirable patience. A storm may come and go quickly, but its effects can last for days. Your understanding was crucial to the success of our efforts. Let us now brace for what may lay ahead, while praying it simply doesn't happen," Mayor Curry said.
